

STATE'S MORAL CONCEPT CITED

Archbishop of Cincinnati Hails Creation of New Church Province.

The Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., S. T. M., archbishop of Cincinnati, today heralded a new chapter in the ecclesiastical life of Indiana.

Archbishop McNicholas, one of the most distinguished members of the Catholic hierarchy in the country, spoke at installation ceremonies of Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter at St. Peter and Paul cathedral.

"We thank God this morning that our country, especially Indiana and Ohio, affords opportunities for a more intensive cultivation of the vineyard of Christ," he said. "Today the representatives of our Holy Father, His Excellency, our Most Reverend Apostolic Delegate, puts into effect the decisions of the Supreme Pontiff for the church of Indiana and Ohio."

New Mission Starts

"Today Indiana begins a new chapter in its ecclesiastical life with its own metropolitan and the three suffragan sees of Ft. Wayne, Lafayette and Evansville. Today the bonds uniting Indiana to the metropolitan see of Cincinnati are broken, and four dioceses of this state are bidden to multiply their labors and to increase the labors for the honor and glory of God and for the salvation of souls."

Archbishop McNicholas praised the bishops in the many dioceses of this section of our country for the marvelous educational institutions in these middle western states.

Step by step, he traced the organization of the province of Indianapolis back to the province of Cincinnati more than 100 years ago.

110 Years of Progress

"In bidding Godspeed to this new jurisdiction," he continued, "we are mindful that the first diocese of Indiana was established 110 years ago and last that the diocese of Vincennes and later Indianapolis has been a suffragan see of Cincinnati for 94 years, and Ft. Wayne for 87 years."

"The happy relations existing between the dioceses of Indiana and Ohio for upwards of a century make us realize regretfully that duty will not again summon their bishops to the same council table or unite them in official decisions or in provincial council legislation."

He rejoiced, however, that six bishops in six dioceses of Ohio will be able to do more for religion than four bishops in four dioceses formerly did and that four bishops and four dioceses in Indiana will do more to extend the Kingdom of God than two bishops and two dioceses.

'Vigorous Province'

"We need not be surprised that the Vicar of Christ in his solicitude for the advancement of religion everywhere should direct his attention to Indiana," Archbishop McNicholas said. "It seems to offer extraordinary opportunities for a vigorous, militant, ecclesiastical province. The organized life of the church in this state is truly marvelous."

Indiana is equipped with institutions for educational, religious and moral living that is not surpassed in any section of the country, the Cincinnati dignitary asserted. These strong forces will be of inestimable value in the difficult years ahead, he said.

"The new archbishop of Indianapolis and the bishops of his suffragan sees can be counted on always, individually and collectively, to teach respect for civil authority and obedience to its laws," Archbishop McNicholas added.

"They and their successors will be interested always as public moral teachers in giving Indiana good citizens; they will regard it as their grave and sacred duty so to train the youth committed to them that they will be the dependable men and women of moral stamina in Indiana, citizens whose lives will be governed by a fixed moral code, whose example must be commended by all right-thinking Americans."

MUSIC TO FEATURE PROGRAM AT TECH

All the music organizations at Technical high school will participate in the Christmas program to be given tomorrow in the boys' gymnasium.

The various organizations taking part are the Concert orchestra, directed by John M. White; the Tech choir, led by J. Russell Paxton; the Girls' Concert club, conducted by Miss Louise E. Swan; Boys' Chorus I and II and the Boys' Choral club, led by Charles R. Hamilton; the Girls' Chorus I and II, the Girls' Glee club and the Girls' Choral club, also directed by Mr. White, and the Boys' Concert club, led by William F. Moon.

Three brass choirs from the Concert band, under the direction of Frederio A. Barker, will assist in introducing the finale, the singing of "Silent Night" by the combined Choir and Concert clubs, conducted by Mr. Paxton.

FORMER PEACE ENVOY TO SPEAK AT FORUM

Dr. Simon Reiser, acting president of the professional men's forum, will speak on "World Peace" at a dinner meeting on the forum at 6:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Columbia club.

Dr. Reiser was a member of the world peace commission to Paris in 1918 and was sent by the commission to Russia as an observer. He also served on the Rhineland commission in Germany.

Text of Archbishop Ritter's Sermon to Congregation Following His Installation at Cathedral

During impressive ceremonies in the St. Peter and Paul cathedral this morning Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter addressed the congregation following his installation as archbishop. His sermon follows:

"The honor conferred on me and the Diocese in these ceremonies, while totally unmerited, is accepted in the spirit of gratitude and obedience. The confidence on the part of our superiors that it expresses, is something for which we should rightfully feel honored. To the Holy Father, therefore, in this hour of his great anxiety and solicitude, we offer through his representative, the Most Rev. Apostolic delegate, our deepest gratitude along with our affection, reverence and obedience. "During these tragic years of the world's history, he has stood strong and calm, although unable, in spite of every effort, to prevent the war, he has fearlessly championed the cause of justice and humanity, pleading in the meanwhile with the nations and the peoples of the world to rebuild and re-vitalize the Christian order of life, the foundation of all true peace and civilization. "To him, on this occasion, we offer whatever solace it is in our power to give, and we pledge to him the loyalty and the prayers of the people, the religious and the clergy of the Archdiocese of Indianapolis.

"However, the occasion is not one of merely personal and diocesan significance. There has been inaugurated today a new Ecclesiastical province, with a new division of territory in the state of Indiana, to effect a more closely knit organization of spiritual and religious endeavor. "It is, therefore, an historic occasion, another milestone in the steady growth and development of the church in the Midwest. The creation of new dioceses this morning is merely a continuance of what was begun when dioceses were cut off from the primate See of Baltimore more than 190 years ago.

"This occasion, then, marks the continued advance of the church. May it in the providence of God be the means of intensifying religious thinking and living, of strengthening faith and morality, of restoring God and His law in a secular, materialistic society.

"Surely, nothing is more important today if the world is to again know peace, order and happiness.

"And thus the occasion is one that places new and greater responsibilities upon us. These rest first of all, upon the Episcopate. Together with my brother bishops of the province; I accept the challenge that the occasion presents. This occasion links us more closely to the great Shepherd of Rome.

"May it also obtain for us a participation in his courage, wisdom and charity. With him we pledge ourselves to labor unceasingly to further the Kingdom of God in the souls entrusted to our care.

"In this common endeavor we shall have the co-operation of the clergy, religious and laity, whose devotion, zeal and obedience have already been established. This will be our strength and assurance in the days ahead.

"With these sentiments and such assistance, we readily and confidently accept the command of the vicar of Christ, whose will is for us the will of God himself. May that will, the Holy Will of God, be ever glorified in us and through us. Amen."

STRAUSS SAYS: — — — IT'S ONE DAY NEARER VICTORY

A GOOD LEISURE JACKET!

IS a swell remembrance — for this Christmas — and many Christmases to come — For every day (and night) throughout the year — for every season — for indoors — and out!

When all is said and done — a G.O.O.D jacket can be produced only with clothing minds and by clothing hands! It takes that sort of know-how and experience to put fit into a coat — to get the right shoulders on them — the smooth, easy arm holes — so that the Jackets will rest so lightly on you with a luxury of ease!

Perhaps you recall those old-time . . . eye-irritants . . . known as "Smoking Jackets." They were, we think, the cause of a lot of domestic discord . . . some were pretty awful! The Leisure Jacket is the modern successor — far more comfortable — far more sightly . . . far more useful. The selections are almost endless — and the prices are the fairest.

Norden Firms Indicted on Conspiracy Count

of the entire voting stock of the corporation.

Carl L. Norden, Inc., manufacturers of the Norden bombsight.

Theodore H. Barth, president, and Ward B. Marvill, vice president, who control the business and policies of the Norden Co.

Biddle said Carl L. Norden, inventor of the bombsight and former president of the Norden Co., was not involved. Norden no longer is connected with the Norden Co.

The second indictment was directed at Corrigan, Osborn & Wells, Inc., Cmdr. Corrigan and Wells.

It alleged that since March 10, 1942, the three defendants had "unlawfully, feloniously, wilfully and knowingly" conspired to deprive the government of its right to the "conscientious, faithful, disinterested and unbiased judgment and determination of action by the navy department and its officers, free from corruption, partiality, improper influence, bias, dishonesty and fraud."

Corrigan was suspended by the navy department, pending inquiry, in June, 1944, following hearings by the senate war investigating committee. Biddle said the alleged conspiracies have been under investigation by a special grand jury in New York since June 12, 1944.

Shortly before Pearl Harbor, according to Biddle, the war and navy department determined that a much larger production of the Norden bombsight, then manufactured only by the Norden Co., was required.

In contracting with Norden for 8500 complete bombsights, Biddle said, the navy requested Remington Rand, Inc., Elmira, N. Y., to mass-produce the principal component part of the bombsight, known as the "football unit."

On April 22, 1942, at the request of the navy, Biddle said, Norden agreed to supply Remington Rand with the necessary information and engineering assistants.

Subsequently, Remington Rand's Elmira plant was taken over by the navy and its management was turned over to the Norden Co.

Meanwhile, the war department contracted with the Cardanic Corp.,

Easthampton, Mass., a wholly owned subsidiary of Norden, to supply bombsights to the army.

Later, the indictment charged, the Norden Co., Barth and Marvill decided to keep control of bombsight and bombsight parts production completely in Norden hands and "to refuse, fail and neglect to furnish and make available to other manufacturers," including their own wholly owned subsidiary, information necessary to bombsight manufacture.

Cardanic failed to meet its army contract and the navy, which previously had procured sights for the war department, contracted with the Norden Co. to supply those which Cardanic failed to produce.

In July, 1943, investigation of charges by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (C.I.O.) that the company was "slowing down production" disclosed that Norden was using a "reinspection" method to withhold delivery of units by Remington Rand, Biddle said.

But Corrigan, after an inquiry in his official capacity, exonerated Norden. As part of the conspiracy, the indictment charged, Norden thereupon employed the industrial engineering firm of Corrigan, Osborn & Wells, Inc., paying it more than $104,000 from Oct. 3, 1943, to May 31, 1944.

Corrigan was charged with using his official position to induce and influence manufacturers whose plants were not inspected by Corrigan to employ the firm of C. O. & W. as production engineers.

The indictment further charged that Corrigan furnished Wells, his partner, and the firm with information "he had obtained in his official capacity . . . for the purpose of aiding and assisting said defendants to procure employment" of C. O. & W.

RECEPTION HELD FOR CICOGNANI

Papal Delegate Honored by Civic Leaders; Ritter Praised.

A civic reception last night in Cathedral high school auditorium opened the series of ceremonies accompanying the installation of Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter and the establishment of the new Ecclesiastical Province of Indianapolis.

The program was in honor of the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, J. U. D., apostolic delegate to the United States. Among other dignitaries present was the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P. S. T. M., archbishop of Cincinnati.

Speakers at the reception included Governor Schricker, Mayor Tyndall and Thomas D. Sheerin. There were addresses also by the apostolic delegate and Archbishop Ritter, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Raymond R. Noll, V. G., cathedral pastor, president.

In addition to the Catholic dignitaries named, several others sat on the platform, which with the auditorium was decorated in the papal yellow and white. The United States flag stood at one end of the platform and the flag of the pope at the other.

All the dignitaries wore the biretta, a red silk head dress. They also wore a graceful red cape, or ferolia, over a black cassock piped in red.

The speakers paid high tribute to Archbishop Ritter. They described his accomplishments, his great spirituality, and the fact that he is a Hoosier whose entire career has been spent in this state.

Personal Friendship

The remarks of both the governor and the mayor were full of their feeling of personal friendship for the archbishop. Mr. Sheerin and the apostolic delegate dwelt on the history of the diocese.

Archbishop Ritter said, "My thunder has all been stolen." Such was the price one paid for honors, he said.

Nevertheless, he gave his own version of what the community owes to the early bishops and missionaries who endured tremendous hardships to pave the way for the new province. Archbishop Ritter added:

"As we look about us, in our country and in the world, there is indeed much to give us concern and much that needs to be done. But there is one thing that constantly becomes more and more apparent to all right-minded people. It is the need of spiritual and religious ideals in the world. Religion, alone, can effect lasting order, peace and happiness among individuals and nations. . . ."

'Program of Action'

"Should we not then as Catholics, Christians and good Americans, make this our program of action for the days ahead both officially and individually:

"That by personal endeavor, through organization and co-operation, to strive for the restoration of religion and respect for God's law, the moral law, in every department of human and social relationship, in the nation and in the world. Then and only then can we hope to see established peace, order and happiness."

The musical program for the reception was furnished by the archdiocesan male chorus and a girls' chorus from local academies directed by Elmer A. Steffen, K. S. G. The cathedral symphonic band played under the direction of Brother Paul C. S. C.

Get Out That Sleigh, Santa, Cold Weather to Linger Here

Memo for Santa Claus:

At the rate things are going here you'll be able to use that sleigh this year—and don't forget to wear your woolies.

Yes, with a slight snow cover around town today and more expected later in the week those eight reindeer of yours shouldn't have any trouble at all in this part of the country.

And the cold? Well, the weather bureau does promise it will be warmer tonight and tomorrow but the remainder of the week stacks up like this:

Colder Thursday; warmer Friday and Saturday; and colder Sunday.

That biting cold that the weather bureau promised for last night arrived all right. At 1 a. m. at the airport it was 9 degrees above zero, while at the federal building it was 13 above.

It began to "warm up," however, and by afternoon it was in the 20's. The thin film of snow this morning slowed traffic and was responsible for several automobile accidents.

Arthur Landon, 229 Harris ave., was cut on the head when he walked into the path of a car in the 300 block on S. Illinois st. about 6 a. m.

He told police the snow prevented him from seeing the approaching car driven by Eugene Statter, 29, of 2227 Fulton st.

A two-ton truck crashed into a bridge rail on route 37, north of Banter rd., about 4 a. m., injuring Jack Brannan, 32, and Joe Natelle, 37, both of Bloomington. Both were cut on the legs.

Brannan told sheriff deputies he momentarily dropped off to sleep and crashed when he tried to bring the truck out of a skid.

K-9 BILL OF RIGHTS— Council Votes Life-Dog Tags For War Pups

INDIANAPOLIS dog veterans of this war at last have come into their own G. I. bill of rights. Councilman William A. Brown's "war dogs" ordinance last night was passed by city council. The measure provides life licenses for dogs who have served with the armed forces. An initial fee of 25 cents is required to pay the cost of the metal tag. Lowell Nussbaum, Indianapolis Times columnist, broached the idea last August in his column. A number of other cities have taken similar action. Chicago officials are considering such an ordinance.

28 GIVEN SENTENCES IN ARMY CAMP RIOT

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 19 (U. P.).—Three Negro enlisted men faced prison terms ranging from 12 to 25 years today in connection with the hanging Aug. 14 of Olivetto Guglielmo, a member of an Italian secret unit, during a riot at Ft. Lawton. Twenty-five other Negro soldiers found guilty of participating in the riot, which hospitalized 30 other former prisoners of war, received dishonorable discharges and prison sentences of six months or more, at the conclusion of the army's largest court-martial of the war last night.

own fighter-bombers against the American lines in considerable force. A blistering V-bomb barrage also was opened up. One new weapon in the Nazi arsenal was revealed as a highly secret V-bomb. Front correspondents were permitted to describe it only as a rocket-type projectile. First army spokesmen still were confident that the German attack would be contained and blunted within a matter of days. They ridiculed Nazi propaganda boasts that the drive would reach Paris by Christmas. Nevertheless, it was acknowledged that when the extent of the German advance finally is revealed it will come as a rude shock to many who thought the Wehrmacht had spent its hitting power.

Archbishop Ritter Installed In History-Making Pageant

new archdiocese came into being and the archbishop-elect became the archbishop.

ARCHBISHOP-ELECT RITTER, knowing himself now to be the center of an episode of church history in the making, turned from the altar where he had been praying with his back toward the congregation. He slowly descended the altar steps to be met at the foot by the apostolic delegate and a prelate. The delegate took the archbishop-elect's left hand and the prelate, his right. Together they escorted the former Bishop of Indianapolis to the throne on the gospel side of the altar.

After being seated, Archbishop-elect Ritter received from the apostolic delegate the crozier, a tall staff resembling a shepherd's crook. The crozier symbolizes pastoral authority. The heralded moment had come. The new province was established and the new archbishop installed.

The apostolic delegate then mounted the second throne in the sanctuary, a white one on the epistle, or right side of the altar. The throne was draped in white because white symbolizes the pope.

ARCHBISHOP RITTER then stood before the high altar and, facing the congregation, gave his first archepiscopal blessing. This was done without the mitre in respect to the crucifix on the cross which he was facing.

The clergy of the diocese approached the throne to renew their vows of obedience and the others paid homage by kneeling and kissing the archbishop's ring.

While this was taking place the church's thanksgiving hymn, the "Te Deum" which was probably written about 300 A. D., was sung by the choir. The apostolic delegate had previously intoned it.

"THIS OCCASION is one that places new and greater responsibilities upon us," Archbishop Ritter said. "These first of all, upon the Episcopate. Together with my brother Bishops of the Province, I accept the challenge that the occasion presents.

"This occasion links us more closely to the great Shepherd of Rome," he said. "With him we pledge ourselves to labor unceasingly to further the Kingdom of God in the souls entrusted to our care. In this common endeavor we shall have the co-operation of the clergy, religious and laity, whose devotion, zeal and obedience have already been established. This will be our strength and assurance in the days ahead."

THE MOST REV. JOHN T. McNICHOLAS, O. P. S. T. M., archbishop of Cincinnati, said in his sermon at today's ceremonies: "We need not be surprised that the Vicar of Christ in his solicitude for the advancement of religion everywhere should direct his attention to Indiana." Archbishop McNicholas said. "It seems to offer extraordinary opportunities for a vigorous, militant, ecclesiastical province. The organized life of the church in this state is truly marvelous."

AFTER ARCHBISHOP RITTER'S address he and the apostolic delegate exchanged reverences before the altar. The apostolic delegate took the throne on the gospel side and the new archbishop, the one on the epistle side. Then the mass began.

The proper of the mass was the "Solemn Votive Mass of SS. Peter and Paul" given in Gregorian chant by the clergy choir. The ordinary was a missa coronata, "Salve Regina" by J. G. Eduard Stehla. As a finale, the four-part male chorus sang Pie's "Tu Es Petrus," which was followed by Alexander Guilmant's "Recessional March."

AS ALWAYS in the mass, the most dramatic point was when the celebrant assumed the place of Christ and uttered the words of consecration which placed Christ Himself upon the altar of sacrifice. All was hushed; the choir, silent; and the congregation, praying. Only the soft tinkle of the little bell broke the stillness. The Host was elevated and then the Host and Chalice, the priest praying. Then the sacrifice of oblation being completed, the trumpets sounded filling the church with their fanfare.

The procession formed again and moved slowly out of the church. A page in religious history had been written. A son of Indiana had been made an archbishop.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS FROM WARM SPRINGS

When unusually cold weather did not interfere, he loafed in the sun. He swam in the 86-degree waters of the famous Georgia springs. Frequently he drove in his small open car through the nearby countryside. The weather went below freezing several times during his stay.

Through the media of a daily mail pouch from Washington and the telephone the President kept up with much of his work. Included were re-organization of the top brackets in the state department occasioned by the resignation of Secretary Cordell Hull and the succession of Edward R. Stettinius Jr. He also signed nearly 100 bills passed by congress.

The way the President enjoyed his stay at Warm Springs was reflected by what he told the crowd which gathered at the tiny railroad station to say goodby when his special train left last Sunday afternoon.

He recalled that in the spring of 1941 he said he would be back in the fall "if we don't have a war."

"But," he told the crowd Sunday, "there was a war. This time, war or no war, I hope to get back this spring."

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A blinding glare showed through the windows of the bus. Then a great V bomb explosion resounded in the distance.

It was the sixth winter of war and for the seventh time in six years we were back in Blighty from the wars, headed from London.

London never was a rosebud among the cities of the world. It was always pretty drab in December, even when the lights were on.

After a few eye-fuls of Model 1944 Parisiennes tripping along the boulevards in their daring directory hats and trimly fashioned coats, London women look mid-Victorian.

The people who have been fighting for five years, lack the pep of the people who have just emerged from four years of German occupation.

Yet London and its people inspire a feeling of assurance and respect. These are the people who have suffered for a purpose, have not been conquered, and have no excuses to offer.

People on Edge
FIVE YEARS of war aren't easy on the nerves and the Blighty of 1944 is a country of people on edge.

Inside Indianapolis By Lowell Nussbaum

MRS. DON MENKE, wife of the WFBI salesman, went on a shopping tour the other day. Seeking a present for her husband, she asked the clerk: "Do you have any vases?"

A reader calls to tell us the Irvington Review published last Friday has a classified ad reading: "For sale—twenty-four year old hens. Ready to lay."

There's NO DOUBT about it—Indianapolis has a warm spot in its heart for servicemen, especially the wounded. Last week, the Red Cross appealed for 50 pairs of crutches for convalescents at Billings hospital.

RUPERT MILLER, an executive at Ayres', has a mirror in his office with a sign on it reading: "If a customer gets in your hair, look in this mirror and count 10."

opinions, or in dealing with certain situations, anybody back in prewar days are more so now than then. Other types are worse than ever.

You don't find a great deal of reticence among our own frontline troops.

Like the process in breeding, the ordeal of a long war has brought out the best and worst in people.

People whom we remember as being pleasant and decent back in prewar days are more so now than then.

When we arrived at our apartment house with a mountain of baggage it was Old Bill, now bent and over 70, who came rolling across the street to help us upstairs with it.

During the next few months, and years, the American capacity to understand this country's trouble is going to be put to the test.

'Easy as Pie'
THE ATTITUDE which is going to get nobody anywhere was ably illustrated the other day by a newly arrived young lady who hadn't taken the trouble to read the newspapers.

They were having some trouble finding decorations for a Christmas tree at an American army club, and her advice was asked.

CAMERA RECORDS HISTORIC CEREMONY AT CATHEDRAL—

The Archbishop Assumes His Throne

The Very Rev. Msgr. Henry F. Dugan reads the Papal Bull from the pulpit which establishes the Ecclesiastical Province of Indianapolis and the seat of the Archbishop. The camera looks down on the solemn proceedings from the choir loft.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, second from the left, Apostolic delegate to the U. S., passes at the far end of the church for prayer and blessings before going to the throne.

The Most Rev. Cicognani assumes the throne and awaits the delivery of the Papal Bull. To the right is the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Frederic Ketter, Evansville.

The Rt. Rev. Raymond R. Noll, V. G., hands the Papal Bull to the Most Rev. Cicognani. The decrees are read in both Latin and English.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter assumes the throne as the Most Rev. Cicognani leaves with a bow. Archbishop Ritter then was given the crozier.

Magazine Samples Views Of Employees

By FRED W. PERKINS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—"Many a management man must look wondering at the streams of people flowing through the plant gates and wish sincerely that he knew what is really on their minds."

So states the magazine Factory in presenting the results of the second of its two surveys (by professional opinion pollers) on "What the Factory Worker Really Thinks."

FACTORY summarizes its second survey, on the basis of what the opinion samplers reported as majority views, as follows:

About his company: 1. The American factory workers think his company is capably managed. 2. By and large he feels it is fairly treated. 3. He concedes that his employers have his interests at heart.

About his foremen: 1. He is generally satisfied with his foremen. 2. He believes foremen are properly paid. 3. He tends to favor unions for foremen.

ONE OBVIOUS fact in this survey is that opinions differ notably among factory workers who belong to unions and those who do not.

For instance, in answer to the question, "Do you feel that the head men of your company have the workers' interests at heart, or are not much concerned?"

Although 56 per cent of the workers as a whole voted in favor of the good intentions of management, only 51 per cent of the union employees did so while 68 per cent of the non-union workers voted favorably.

We, the Women Date With Her Soldier Son Is Treat for Mom

By RUTH MILLETT
YOU NEVER saw a prouder, happier looking woman. In the past year her face may have looked strained with worry many times—but now it was soft with happiness.

You didn't have to look far to find the reason. He stood behind her, a tall, broad-shouldered young man in a well-pressed uniform with a campaign ribbon on his chest.

BUT SHE was obviously his mother. Like most returning servicemen he had probably thought a lot about coming home to Mom's swell dinners, to stretching his legs out under the family table and eating all of his favorite dishes.

But unlike many less imaginative young men, he hadn't forgotten that maybe Mom would get a kick out of being taken downtown to eat.

Maybe he even knew secretly how much she would enjoy not only the restaurant meal she did not have to plan and cook, but the chance to show off her boy, and to have people say afterward, "I saw you downtown lurching with Jim. He certainly looks fine in his uniform. I'll bet there aren't many boys home on leave who find time to take their mothers out to lunch."

ANY YOUNG serviceman who could have been interpreted the proud happy look on that mother's face would find time when on leave to take "Mom" out one time.

Sure, any mother enjoys the meals she cooks for her boy on furlough. Enjoys having him ask for second servings and hearing him say, "Boy, I haven't eaten food like this since I left home."

But there's a different kind of pleasure in being taken out. It gives a mother a chance to show her son off a little. And any mother who is as proud as the mother of a boy home from overseas has a right to parade her pride, at least for an hour or two.

America Flies

By Max B. Cook

ROCKETS WERE USED in world war I and some heavy bombers used double-wheeled landing gear as do today's Boeing B-29 Superfortresses.

Lack of parachutes cost the lives of innumerable fighting pilots, many of whom might have been saved had they been supplied with this sort of equipment.

World war II planes also used cannon which fired a 12-pound shell at 1100 feet per second. And an automatic pilot was used to keep a bomber on its run in 1917.

All this is a part of the study which shows how the aerial fighting of world war II was definitely shaped by the trials and tribulations of world war I.

It is well told in words and pictures in "Fighting Wings," by Gilbert Faust and Milton Lancelot.

The rockets were put to good use in knocking down German Zeppelins. They were attached to the struts of biplanes and fired much like Fourth of July rockets.

There Were No Parachutes
PICTURES OF the cumbersome British Handley-Page and Italian Caproni bombers show use of double wheeled landing gear, necessary to sustain their great weight, especially with the kind of rubber tires they had in those days.

A German pilot is shown in a headlong, parachuteless dive from his burning fighter plane over world war I's Western front. They had no parachutes for pilots in those days.

The French flechette, a pencil-like dart, was the first type of missile dropped on the enemy. Reports Washington, Monday—I forgot to tell you that while in New York City I spent one evening of delightful and frivolous enjoyment.

We went to the theater and saw "I Remember Mama," by John Van Druten. This play is adapted from Kathryn Forbes' "Mama's Bank Account."

It is beautifully directed and acted, with Mady Christians, Oscar Homolka and Joan Tetzel in the principal parts. The story is slight, but each individual scene stands out as a perfect little cameo by itself.

There is humor, there is sweetness, and there is pathos, and one very valuable lesson for young writers.

I happen to have been in contact with a few of them lately, who think they can write masterpieces about things of which they know nothing, before they have even lived or experienced any of the tragedies and joys of life.

have it that one dropped from 3000 feet penetrated a mounted soldier's helmet, his body and horse and finally buried itself in the ground.

Explosives came next—hand grenades, artillery shells with fins attached and dropped by hand; gas-line shells and finally internal and external bomb racks were used. Some held 500-pound bombs.

Bombsight Developed
IT WAS a Davis non-recoil 3-inch cannon that was first used, prefiguring present use of the powerful 75-mm. cannon in the noses of P-38's and light and medium bombers.

Aircraft wireless, good for about 150 miles, was in use and code signals were used. Aerial photography was "coming in" rapidly and on September 4, 1917, British pilots took the astounding number of 1800 aerial photographs in a single day.

Spectacular pictures tell the story of world war II to date, and they include the first bombing of Tokyo, the attacks on fortress Europe, the big part aircraft carriers and their fast fighters and torpedo dive bombers have played and are playing in knocking out the Japs.

Published by Essential Books, "Fighting Wings," tells an amazing story of aviation progress. Faust, a lieutenant in the civil air patrol, and Lancelot, an expert on book production, have done a fine job for aviation.

She never seemed to me to be quite living in the world today, with all of its realities. Her world was an interesting world. I loved going to see her and feeling cut off for a while from my everyday surroundings.

I think perhaps she was happier the last years of her life than she had been for many years before, because she discovered her own country as a result of the war, and because of new friendships which she had made.

Instead of feeling sad that she could not visit her old haunts in Europe, she began to enjoy new ones over here. I think her only remaining sister, Mrs. David Gray, and I, as well as her children and close friends, will find the world not quite such a colorful and gay place without her.

Thomas J. Kehoe brought his group of veterans again yesterday afternoon from Walter Reed hospital. There seems to be such an interest in Fala that I am going to show them next Sunday afternoon the first movie which was done here in the White House of that busy little dog.

During the afternoon I had three other appointments, followed by a quiet Sunday supper and not so busy an evening.

I had a press conference this morning. At 12 o'clock I saw a lady who is up here from the island of Antigua, British West Indies. She came to bring me a message from our soldiers there and to take one back to them from me when she returns.

Members of the Indianapolis Real Estate board will be guests at the 10th annual Christmas party sponsored by the Union Title Co. at noon tomorrow in the Athletic club.

Troops Attend Classes on Ship

TRAINING of troops does not stop when the men leave for overseas duty. Motor Machinist's Mate 3-c William N. Karon, Indianapolis navy man whose home is at 323 E. Walnut st., recently served as an assistant instructor aboard a troop ship en route to the Philippines.

GEORGE W. CARVER WEEK PROCLAIMED

The week of Jan. 5-12 has been designated George Washington Carver week, in honor of the noted scientist who found scores of uses for the peanut. Governor Schricker in issuing this proclamation urged all citizens to "join with our churches, universities, schools and organizations in paying particular homage to this great and humble genius."

Holiday Traffic Deaths Predicted

TWELVE PERSONS were killed in traffic accidents during the Christmas holiday week-end, Don F. Stiver, state safety director, predicted today. He said he based his prediction upon the 10 per cent increase in traffic fatalities this year over 1943.
